A Vote for the Democratic Candidate Is a Vote to Encourage Socialism in Colorado. Do You Want It?

FEDERATION OR THE STATE OF COLORADO

Their Interests Are Diametrically Opposed. Whose Interests Will Be Advanced if Adams Is Elected Governor?

[illegible] number 11 in the Ellsworth-Adams [illegible] as follows:

To the Hon. Alva Adams,

Dear Sir:—You are doubtless aware by this time that the announcement of your adherence to the cause of your friends of the Western Federation of Miners in your recent Denver speech has created a profound impression upon the voters of Colorado.

They "suspected as much all the time," but now that you have been goaded into making a specific declaration and have chosen the side of the "Red Flag" element rather than that of the law and order people, an immediate readjusting of political lines has followed.

The Flow and Ebb of Hope.

The people now feel that they know upon which side you stand, although your declarations, as usual were more or less couched in the ambiguous. Your conservative followers felt much encouraged when you declared that if an insurrection occurred you would use the strong arm of the government to assert its power, but all hope died when you turned to your friends, the dictating five-million Socialists of the Western Federation of Miners and in the same breath said then that the militia should be more "decorative than useful" and used to "lend lustre and glory on parades."

If you believe that the militia should be rendered useless or at least ineffectual, why do you not, as a matter of both principle and economy, urge that it be disbanded? Your views upon this point [illegible] do you not think as a mere economy the militia would be rather an expensive luxury?

The People Understand.

In order to make sure that your Federation followers would understand you, you added that the militia should not be used "to take sides in an industrial conflict." There is but one possible interpretation of this remarkable utterance, and the people [illegible] of the case afterward.

Never you think it would have [illegible] more clamor, more [illegible] than with the right of a public officer to leave certain classes of law-breakers [illegible] Socialist [illegible] [illegible] would be to obey the law and respect every man, natural and legal, [illegible] You know very well Mr. Adams that the Colorado militia has never been used in strikes unless it was to prevent [illegible]

Why did you not tell your followers that if they would behave themselves the militia would never trouble them?

The average man believes that there are two sides to the question of strike lawlessness—the side of the law, and the side of the lawless, but here you are a candidate for governor, telling the lawless people that you will not permit the militia to take sides either for or against them.

If you don't want them to understand your statement in this way, you should say so quickly, for they now feel that you meant what you said and they are glorying over it. The following questions cover some points which you have studiously avoided in your public utterances:

A Few Intelligent Ones.

Governor Peabody believes that the state has the right to prevent as well as to suppress strike or other lawlessness when the local authorities fail. Do you join him in this belief?

Governor Peabody believes that it is not necessary, when local authorities fail, for the governor to wait until life and property is sacrificed before sending help to the law-abiding people of a community.

Is this your idea, and would you act upon it if elected, and such a situation arose?

Governor Peabody does not believe that it is necessary for him to wait for local officials to request the troops to suppress disorder or the existence of open violence of being in sympathy with such disorder or insurrection.

Do you think he is right about this?

Let us suppose that the armed strikers should charge upon the Tom Bay mine in which you have both the principal control, and capture it after killing one or two of your employes.

Would you send a telegram to the governor, as was done by the representatives of the last Democratic governor, Orman asking something like this:

"Everything all quiet. Mine in possession property of the strikers. No [illegible] you will withdraw [illegible] troops."

[illegible] should be done otherwise than above. It is plain, unmistakable, [illegible] person who can [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

...ye mouth, and many to the cars to return home. Almost every pane was blown from the inside of the mine and the whole entry was blocked by huge rocks. The mine is on what is known as a pitching vein and there is only one entry, a tunnel running near the base of the mountain.

State Mine Inspector Jones of Denver left here on a special train at noon with General Superintendent J. T. Knoles for Telluride. Mines [illegible] rushed to Ophir and all the men assisting at Terrace.

The explosion is thought to have been caused by gas but the real cause may never be known as the whole shaft was filled. The crash was so terrific that it was heard for miles and the vibrations were distinctly felt at Newton, 11 miles away. It seemed as if an earthquake had occurred, so suddenly did the earth tremble. [illegible] dirt were blown from the tunnel and car shed in heavy black volumes. Broken timbers, huge chunks of coal and bodies of all sizes were hurled hundreds of feet in the center of the tunnel and fell on and around the tipple [illegible] stages directly opposite. [illegible] in the mine were near the mine were covered with sand stones and dirt. Some of the stones landed fully a quarter of a mile away.

Identification Doubtful.

The first objects of the [illegible] Pete and Ben Simpson, [illegible] to [illegible] one of the men who were [illegible] by the wrecked tram car, the second car in an opposite direction [illegible] had taken place minutes [illegible] past. The wreck and debris [illegible] was kept on the "contract" coal [illegible] were [illegible] dug. All of the Slavs [illegible] mine worked under the number system.

[illegible] are entered on the company books, and each is given a number. The wrecked car of coal it was [illegible] and the other bearing it arrived [illegible] with slips on the side [illegible] the check at the tipple [illegible] each particular number could [illegible] the exact amount of coal [illegible] for the day is entered on the [illegible] records of the company.

DENVER, Oct. 29.—In ringing terms Judge S. W. Dixon, of the West Side court, last evening excoriated the jury that heard the evidence in the case of [illegible] Brennan, charged with [illegible] a policeman. The verdict of manslaughter was pronounced by the [illegible] before [illegible] to the [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] of [illegible].

which appeared in a federation publication in Idaho, immediately after the Wardner insurrection. How would this do:

Don't send troops. "It is sometimes necessary to blow up a mine or to kill a man or two to secure recognition of the union."

Or would you send one like this:

"Civil authorities have failed to protect my property and employes from the mob. I demand protection from the state. Send troops to give me possession of my property."

If some of the telegrams said you won't you please tell the people what sort of a telegram you would send under these conditions?

Peace Reigns Today.

You are supposed to demanding peace and an end to industrial strife. We have peace, have we not? Where is the industrial strife in Colorado today?

You know that owing to the courage and efficiency of the Peabody administration a permanent peace has been established in Colorado. Law-abiding people know for the first time in many years that the full power of the state will be used to protect life, liberty and personal and property rights against the attacks of lawless characters.

Want and disorder do not exist. Isn't it a fact that every business enterprise in Colorado is now being operated without fear of attack from the lawless element? The wheels of industry have been set in motion everywhere, and the harvest of prosperity promised and accompanied by the dynamiter of the Western Federation of Miners, does not exist for the miners of Colorado to walk the streets of their town and to follow the vocation in life after work without fear of the hidden assassin.

Prosperity Has Returned.

You may not be aware of it, Governor, but the development of Colorado's great mining industry has been resumed and the men who are employed are receiving the same satisfactory wages and working the same satisfactory hours they were before this industry was wantonly and senselessly interfered by your friends of the Western Federation of Miners. The merchants, professional men and wage-earners of the mining camps and valley cities of the state are again busy, the railways and the smelters are more prosperous, the farmers have returned the fruits of their products in the mining and cities, where a few months ago there was little or no demand. Peace reigns, Mr. Adams, and prosperity has returned to Colorado by the grace of God and a strong, courageous Republican administration.

Is this peace not satisfactory to you? By your constant clamor for "peace" you are giving the people the impression that you refer to the "peace" dear to the heart of the Western Federation of Miners, and which they enjoyed in our mining camps before the late Sixty-Days' Kind of "peace" and the kind of peace wanted by the people of this state are apparently very different.

One Night in Leadville.

Built up the prosperity of Colorado and the supremacy of the Western Federation of Miners at the same time?

You have not claimed ignorance of the policies of the Western Federation of Miners; in fact, you have had experience with the organization in dealing with strike violence.

Do you really believe that you can? Do you remember the time during the Leadville strike, when you, then governor of Colorado, cooled your heels in a frosty Leadville hallway about fifteen minutes while you conversed through a small hole in the door of the lodge room with the officials of the Western Federation of Miners? You doubtless remember that you were trying to induce them to permit your military bodyguard, a very peaceable looking young man in citizen's clothes, to enter the lodge room of their secret and revolutionary organization with you. You wished to consult with the former rioters on the strike question.

The [illegible] militia then as they are now. But inasmuch as you now believe that the militia would be ornamental rather than useful, you doubtless find that their antipathy to the state soldiers is inexcusable.

You know of their lawless conduct in Leadville, of the arming of their Federation members, of the murder of Fogarty O'Keefe and other crimes. You know that this organization has been officially branded as lawless and dangerous to the Canadian government commission. You know of the horrible crimes and the long reign of terror which it inflicted on the citizens of Idaho. You know that in California and Nevada it has proven equally bad people. You are surely familiar with the bloody record of crime and strike violence in Idaho Springs, Colorado City, Telluride, Lake City, Leadville and Cripple Creek. These crimes are familiar to every man, woman and child in this state who reads. They are the subject of comment throughout the country, and the prime issue in this state is whether or not this revolutionary society shall be permitted to continue operations in our mining camps.

Moral Courage Fails.

And yet, knowing all these things, you are addressing the people of Colorado every day without the moral courage to call them to denounce the crimes of these Federation outlaws and their outlaw leaders.

What a brave gentleman!

Apart from this, you went so far in your Denver speech as to say that you did not believe that the published charges against this organization were true. You doubtless meant that you did not regard them as all true.

How many murders and cases of dynamiting, how many instances of assault and deportation would be necessary to convince you of the criminal character of the organization?

Name the limit and then send some one to whom you have confidence to search the records of the Cripple Creek and Telluride districts, and see if you do not find enough foul murders and other crimes committed by this organization or its members to meet your requirements.

You have at least undertaken to denounce and condemn the crimes of the Western Federation of Miners, and at the same time to exonerate and eulogize the same organization while engaged in breaking the power of this murderous organization. You dare now added to your list of incomprehensible (?) offenses the practice of sneering at and ridiculing the military arm of the state, and intimating that you will render the militia useless when you become governor.

Don't you really think that you owe the people and the militia of Colorado a public apology? You know it is never too late to do right, Mr. Adams.

Yours truly,

E. E. RITTENHOUSE.

CATTLE STOLEN FROM STOCK CAR

FLORENCE, Colo., Oct. 29.—Sixteen head of cattle are missing from a Denver and Rio Grande stock car which was enroute from Florence to Canon City and it is supposed that thieves made away with the black none of which has been located after a vigorous search. The train was in charge of Conductor Roden and was east bound. At Canon City the seal was noticed to have been all right, but upon reaching this city it was found that the seal was broken, the door open and the bull board removed. It is thought the culprit will be headed today as Denver and Rio Grande detectives are working on the case.

DONNELLY THINKS JAP UNDESIRABLE

[illegible] to the invasion of the American industrial field by Japanese laborers is framed by Secretary Michael Donnelly of the Butcher Workmen's union. To head off the Japanese, Donnelly will introduce a resolution at the convention of the American Federation of Labor in San Francisco next month calling for the enactment of legislation excluding them from the United States. The matter was brought to Donnelly's attention by a call made on him by K. Okajima, a Japanese, who was seeking information regarding conditions in the packing plants. Mr. Okajima showed letters of introduction to the packers recommending him as the proper person to furnish them with Japanese labor. He said that he had [illegible] could give work to 500 or 600 men of his nationality.

Pursuing his inquiries, Mr. Okajima asked if Japanese would be admitted to the butcher workmen's union. Donnelly showed the constitution of the labor organization which contains nothing excluding either the foreigner or [illegible]

"I am sure, however," Donnelly said, "that the members of the union would not consent to receiving Japanese and the executive committee would not grant a charter to any local union which admitted them."

MILLIONS AT STAKE IN THIS ELECTION

Investment of Eastern Capital in Colorado, Dependent on Return of Governor Peabody to Office, Says Henry Hine.

"The people of the east are intensely interested in the political fight in this state this year," said Henry Hine [illegible] relative to the effect that the state election will have on the flow of capital to Colorado. "I was astonished at the number of men who were familiar with the details of our labor troubles. The sentiment is strongly in favor of the re-election of Governor Peabody. Between Wanting, house, head of the Westinghouse Air Brake Co. said to me that in his opinion Governor Peabody was a brave and efficient executive.

Mr. Hine has spent much of his summer at the seashore or in New York, but is returning the center of the Colorado election as a national affair.

"To develop this country," he continued, "it is necessary to get money from the east and to build up our resources. Colorado has had more than its share of labor disturbances during the last year and the credit that has been built up during the past two years will be lost [illegible] if we do not win. It pays to all that we are to maintain law and order and enforce the rights of property owners.

"Mr. Curtis and myself are interested in plans which will involve the expenditure of several millions of dollars in the state but we will be unable to get the money if Adams is elected.

"This state will some day be a great manufacturing center if we are able to get cheap power installed, but power from [illegible] companies more than other sources, are dependent on conditions varying from strict enforcement of the law. At the present time much of the capital that used to come to this state is being invested in Mexico. We have greater facilities and as large opportunities as any place on the continent, and capital will flow in from every direction just as soon as the citizens men of the country realize that the best interests here are under the protection of enforced law."

STATE FEDERATION OF CLUBS DECRIED ACTS OF VANDALISM

The Colorado Federation of Women's clubs assembled in annual convention early in October at Fort Collins, adopted among others, the following resolution:

Resolved, That this federation vigorously protest against the defacement of Colorado scenery for advertising purposes or for anything accomplished by the use of paint, paint or chisel."

The action is in complete sympathy with the circular letter just issued by Secretary Wray of the chamber of commerce to the Women's clubs of the state requesting that its members take up the matter of preventing acts of vandalism which mar or destroy the beauty of the natural scenery of Colorado.

Therefore, it is a foregone conclusion that having started the work, the clubs will heartily cooperate to the extent of their ability in any plan which may lead to the protection.

TAXPAYERS ARE CURIOUS TO KNOW WHAT THIS DEAL MEANS

The publication of the facts in connection with the proposed vacation of the Sheldon tract in the city of Colorado Springs has created considerable of a sensation, and many questions are being asked as to the reasons for leaving out the small tract in the southeast corner of the Sheldon property.

The city limits of Colorado Springs extend to La Veuve or beyond the Sheldon tract on the south side of Colorado avenue, while on the north side of the avenue the limits are Eleventh street. Colorado City commences at Sheldon avenue and extends west from that point, leaving the Sheldon tract outside of both cities.

An order stating that all consumptives are hereafter to be barred from the positions of letter carrier and postal clerk in the Denver postoffice has caused much comment here, for if such an order has been sent to the Denver office it is probable that the same may be made for the office here.

Yesterday a special rush order, to the effect that no person afflicted with the dread disease should be given a position in the Denver postoffice, was received by the Denver secretary of the civil service commission from Alfred W. Cooley, acting president of the civil service commission. The order says [illegible] examining service [illegible] persons who are afflicted with tuberculosis, it is directed that applicants for postoffice service in Denver, Colo., must be examined by a medical officer stationed in that city, and if it is found that they are so afflicted their applications shall not be accepted.

Denver is the only city in the United States which has so far received orders to this effect, but as the same conditions [illegible] Springs as in Denver, there is a possibility that the order may be made to affect the offices here. The object of the order is to discourage persons knowing themselves afflicted with the disease from taking the examination for the positions and as such an examination will be held early in November the order will go into effect at once.

The new ruling will bar fifteen persons afflicted with tuberculosis who already hold positions as letter carrier or postal clerk.

Henry Coby Tells the Story of a Fierce Skirmish With Indians

Indian depredations in Colorado in 1864 had become so frequent, cruel and appalling that when the soldiers under Col. John M. Chivington, encountered the savages at Sand Creek on the 29th day of November, 1864, no quarter was shown.

Henry Coby, of this city, then a young man, was among the first to enlist in the Third Colorado regiment under Col. Chivington. The regiment had spent three months campaigning across the dry, heated plains before any effective work was accomplished. It was not until early in November that a large band of Indians was located on the banks of Sand creek, about 40 miles south of where Fort Logan now stands, near the village of Fort Lyon.

Bent's Fort.

Bent's fort, a rude frontier structure of palisades stood some miles below Fort Logan. It was to this point that Col. Chivington led his men, where he learned that Black Kettle and White Antelope with some three thousand braves were encamped upon the banks of Sand creek.

The column made prisoners of all whom they met, lest some should reach the Indians that they were marching forward to the attack. At Bent's fort a halt was made to rest ridges and horses.

On the night of the 28th the column started for Sand creek, riding in close abreast, and carrying in their rear a small brass cannon and an ammunition wagon.

HENRY COBY.

The night was cold and a biting wind blew from the north. With jingle of spurs and clank of sabre the column of avenging men rode through the darkness, following the dim trail on the plains until the grey dawn of the morning, when they came to the ridge overlooking the Indian camp. Here Chivington divided his men, sending a column of two's in opposite directions so as to surround the camp.

Sleeping Indians.

The Indians were still sleeping in their lodges when the cannon sent a crash of lead into their midst.

The battle was on. Chief White Antelope came rushing from his lodge brandishing a rifle, urging on his followers, and surrounded closely on all sides they emptied their rifles and revolvers into the struggling mass of Indians. Finally when the firing had ceased, a crimson tide ebbed into the creek and reddened its waters with blood.

Henry Coby, with a companion was trying to capture some horses for one of the party after the fight. A bullet fired from the tall grass caused Coby's companion, kneeling towards the spot he saw an Indian in the act of reloading his rifle. In an instant he sent a bullet through the red man's brain.

Mr. Coby carried off the ride and has it yet, a rusted relic of the bloodiest Indian skirmish ever fought upon the plains of Colorado.

INDEPENDENT TELEPHONE CO.

An article appeared in last week's issue relative to the new telephone system which contained a number of statements absolutely false. In justice to themselves the company desire to state that not a man in town has been asked to buy stock, but at the same time stock is for sale and is a paying investment.

Mr. M. H. Spere, contrary to the statement made by the Iris, did not organize the Greeley telephone system. The party who organized the Greeley system was Geo. A. Carter, of [illegible] M. H. Spere has no connection or even acquaintance.

The Greeley Co. moreover, paid a dividend of 25 per cent to stockholders the first year. The same people are still there, it and the Bell company did not buy the new system, as erroneously stated by the Iris.

At that time the same proposition was made to people of Greeley, namely $2.00 for residence and $5.00 for business phone. The Bell company finally cut down their price to meet that of their competitor. The result was that the business men had two phones, the people found that the extravagant rate of charging $5.00 instead of $2.00 per month.

Another grievous error was the statement in the Colorado City local paper that M. H. Spere was the promoter of the Ft. Morgan system. To set them right we will state that the promoters of that system were D. E. Gray and E. P. Shumway. The former established same in today, and it is still flourishing. If the Bell company can buy this stock for 30 cents on a dollar, M. H. Spere will give them 50 cents, thus allowing them to make a profit of 40 cents.

The people of Kansas City are as wide awake as any community in the country, and not later than last summer, they threw out the Bell phones in one day. The wires were cut, the phones pulled out and the poles [illegible] away.

There are now over 10000 phones of the new system in actual service in Kansas City and others are being put in at the rate of 200 per month.

Mr. M. H. Spere was indeed the promoter of the Bay Telephone system and has a 10-year contract with the Bell company [illegible] in the state. If the new system were of such little consequence, it is not very likely the Bell company would enter into contract with them.

There are numerous reasons why Colorado City should give its support to an Independent Telephone Company. It affords cheaper and better service. The phones will be unlimited. There are no party lines, all are direct lines to the central office.

Again, we do not expect an answer on [illegible] as we only wish to [illegible] we believe in any of the statements on behalf of that part, it should be for those who are benefited the most way.

The stockholders of the new system, therefore, are determined that in their behalf shall be given to the public, but the public decide for themselves.

CURES MADE BY NEW YORK DOCTORS

Read Their Special Offer and Get Cured.

New York Doctors have established a reputation for curing Chronic Diseases. They have the confidence of the people for they will not treat incurable cases. Every one who begins treatment with these specialists are given a Guarantee for Permanent Cure.

Have you ever visited the offices of your doctor? If so, you have seen busy flies were all the time and new, instead of a crowd of hopeless-looking, forlorn invalids, a pleasant, laughing party, all beaming and feeling that they were on the sure road to health. Would you like to join this happy van and quit your grunting and get well? If so, go see these doctors at once. They will EXAMINE you FREE OF CHARGE, and if not incurable, will guarantee to make you well.

Do not think that because you have not been cured your case is incurable. These doctors have the finest and most scientific equipment in this country. They are graduates of the best medical colleges of this country and Europe, and having spent a life time in the study of chronic diseases, can most positively cure you. They are curing others and why not you?

Read New York Doctors Liberal Offer of Three Months' Free Treatment.

At special request New York Doctors have extended their offer of three months' free treatment, which was expired to November 15. This is positively the last chance to get these free treatments. If you are sick or afflicted in any way you are making a serious mistake by not consulting New York Doctors. Do it at once. Do it today. Go and talk with them. See their equipment and learn how they cure chronic and deep seated diseases.

New York Doctors are treating some of the best people of your city. They are always glad to furnish the names and addresses of cured and satisfied patients, that you may go and learn for yourself what these people have to say.

"New York Doctors advertise," I hear you say. Yes, they advertise, and pay for their advertisements. Does that fact make them unable to cure diseases? Does it take their well-earned education and experience away from them? Not one whit. Do you shun the merchant who tells you through the papers that he has something you need which he will sell to you at a bargain? Do you advise against consulting "DOCTOR EUGENE CARTER," who now [illegible] his surgical horn? (Never mind the false notes.) Don't you think it would be better for men of authority to write signed articles for the newspapers and intelligently present scientific matters? But that wouldn't be ethical, would it? Let us stand back and watch the procession of modest medical men who never advertise—oh, no. At the head is our friend, Dr. Keene Carver. Then comes the sure-enough regular. He is ridden in a swell turnout with a canine following. How do we know he is a "regular?" Because the gentleman who is riding beside him is the city reporter to our morning daily. Is it not queer that the newspapers should write up the private details of some wonderful surgical operation, giving a photo of the surgeon and even a drawing of the rooms, with an interview with the [illegible] WHERE OUT THE KNOWLEDGE AND CONSENT of "the Zeke Dan" who is the greatest surgeon that ever lived? Why not acknowledge that this is all paid for—but it is not advertising—oh, no—get the daily papers in the place to study appendicitis. To-day is the foot-killer always on a vacation? Must we always see those long ears waving over the top of the ethical fence, and is the fat hare to keep all the little pigs out of the clover patch? What is the public to think of a profession that winks its other eye at the man who calls a reporter and tells the newspapers put an account of his surgical success, but runs up the eyes like a dying rabbit at the mention of the advertising doctor. Yes, we advertise. We want you to know it. We cure the sick and do not rob them. Our fees are moderate. We cure and live.

Free treatments if you call before November 15.

Office hours 8:30 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sundays 9 to 1 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays only.

TRIO OF VETERANS WITH WAR RECORDS

MEXICAN WAR VETERANS.
M. B. Hayden, Geo. Christy and M. Templeton.

The above represents three veterans of the Mexican war—M. B. Hayden, Geo. Christy and M. Templeton.

Christy died in the soldiers' home in California. Templeton is living at Woodland park, while old Man Hayden, as he is known, is living sick at his home at Fourth and Washington streets, Colorado City. Mr. Hayden served one year in the Mexican war under Gen. Winfield Scott, and was among the first troop to march into the City of Mexico after it had been taken.

He enlisted under Major J. Breckenridge of Kentucky, who afterwards served under Garibaldi and was captured by the enemy and shot.

Hayden was a union soldier in the Civil war, fought in a score of battles, notably at Prairieville, Ky., and Murfreesboro, Tenn.

At the latter place he was shot through and taken prisoner. After the war he was released and pensioned.

Mr. Hayden will celebrate his 54th wedding anniversary this November. His wife and six children are living in the city.

MADSTONE HAS UNIQUE HISTORY

David McKibben, living at 1021 Colorado avenue, is the possessor of two madstones, the largest of which is less than an inch square, which he values at $1000. The stone is of the color of putty and is said to come from the Fallow Deer Islands and to be the product of an anaconda or sea lizard similar to that which lurks the coral reefs.

When applied for the rabbits it is first immersed in warm milk and water and adheres to the wound until the poison is drawn out.

B. OLDFIELD TOOK WORLD'S HONORS ON EMPIRE TRACK

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Barney Oldfield won the automobile track championship of the world today at the Empire City track, defeating Paul Sartori, the driver of W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.'s car, in the final heat of the four-cornered 10-mile race. His time was 6:12 2-5, which beats all worlds records for 10 miles on a track from a standing start, by two-fifths of a second. Sartori's time was 6:13 1-5.

In the final heat Sartori got the better of the start, but was quickly overhauled by Oldfield whose time at the first mile was 1:05 2-5, a world's record for a standing start. Sartori's time was 1:12 2-5.

The fifth mile was finished by Oldfield in 1:05, Sartori's time was 1:15.

GAMES YET TO BE PLAYED BY SECOND DIVISION TEAMS

There will be a football game here on Thanksgiving day.

For a number of years past the Colorado college-High school of Mines game has been played on Washburn field on Thanksgiving day. But this year the local team has decided to Golden that day. The Tigers will play in Salt Lake City on Thanksgiving.

Manager Frank Ross of the High school "Tornado" has announced that the High school will play a home team on that date. The state intercollegiate league has decided that the championship game between the winners of the northern and southern divisions is to be played on Thanksgiving day. To those who have been reading the dope it is a good bet that the local High school will win the championship of the southern division. The opponent that they have to fear the most is Centennial High school. To care the Tornado should win the honors, the big game on the 24th of November must be played on Washburn field on Tuker day.

If they should not land first place, Manager Ross will negotiate with one of the strong teams of the northern part of the state for an exhibition game here on that day.

The wrangle between the local High school and Centennial High school of Pueblo was settled at a meeting of the state board of control in Denver Friday night. It was decided that the game should be played on Washburn field on Thanksgiving day. The receipts will be divided. The exact amount of the receipts given by the Colorado College school was not announced.

The local High school team will play Colorado City High school on Washburn field next Saturday. The locals have not had a game for two weeks but have been keeping in practice. They expect a victory over the out-of-town school.

Manager Stenberg will journey to Pueblo on Saturday to meet the scrub eleven from Centennial High school. The local boys will get in some good practice this week to be in the best form for this hard game.

A game of great interest locally is that between the High school and Cotton wood juniors. It will be played on election day, and will undoubtedly draw a large crowd.

As the northern champion there is but one game scheduled for this week. The Denver school at Boulder. It should result in a victory for the Buffs, unless the northern champion has gone back on the showing made in the game with Colorado college.

The boat will attempt to lower the present record of 11 hours and 10 minutes, made by Hawks in a 40-foot boat.

STRANG LEAGUE GAMES

The second High school [illegible] last night on the [illegible] alleys. The first game was won by the High school though it was outbowled over 10 pounds to the man. [illegible] the game in Manitou's favor. The first half ended 1 to 0, after the High school boys had pushed the ball to Manitou's five yard line to run up against a stone wall, and lose it on downs. Straight line bucks brought the High school within scoring distance in the second half and Wilson was pushed over for the first touchdown. On the line up, Mahoney made a short run and recovered the ball. Steele then plunged over the High school another chance and Ross scored the second touchdown.

In an even game on the West Side grounds yesterday morning, the Stevens defeated the Wilson Stock 11 to 6. The Stevens [illegible] scored early in the game. The Side Partners [illegible] Bennett threw behind the ball and ran 40 yards for a touchdown.

THINK GANS MAY NOT MAKE WEIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—Interest in the contest between Gans and Britt, scheduled for next Monday night, centers in the query whether Gans can make the required 133 pounds. Gans has been around the 134 pound mark for several days. It is now [illegible] that he is having much trouble at the scales, while others suggest that it is a ruse to bring the betting at even money.

Both agree that if Gans is one pound overweight he will insist on the $5,000 purse and that there will be no fight.

Roberts Graney has announced that if Gans is overweight and Britt is prevailed to go on he will declare himself.

Gans asserts that he has no fear of being overweight when the time comes for the contest. The present betting is practically at a standstill, though a few bets have been placed at 10 to 8 on Gans.

The Broadway bowlers from Denver were too strong for the Crescents in last night's game on the latter's alleys, and took two out of three games. But all told in the totals separated the teams at the finish. Neither side displayed championship form and but three scores [illegible]

BELIEVES IN CO-EDUCATION

CONDITIONS AT COLLEGE

HEAD OF LOCAL INSTITUTION DOES NOT AGREE WITH THE VIEWS EXPRESSED BY PRESIDENT OF NORTHWESTERN

The statement recently made by President Farrar, of Northwestern university, that co-education is driving the young students out of the co-educational institutions, has naturally aroused great interest among the college presidents of the country and has caused much comment.

Dr. William F. Slocum, president of Colorado college, and an ardent believer in co-education, was asked by the Gazette to express himself on this subject, and said:

"It should be remembered that the number of co-educational institutions for higher education has largely increased during the past few years, so that today something over 75 per cent of all colleges in America are open to women.

Western Characteristic.

"Naturally in the west as compared to older eastern institutions are making it possible for women to avail themselves of the advantages which exist at the great universities. It is true that the universities in and about Chicago have found that a good many of the young men from that vicinity are going to the older colleges of the east, but with the great advances that the west is making in educational matters, this ...condition, like all good things, ...must have the best name," says Dr. Slocum, but he does not believe in the ...mingling of young men and women in a college town; but he holds that there should be the same careful supervision ...that exists in any cultivated home. The ...unnatural life which existed years ago in the old-fashioned boarding school is a thing of the past, but there ought to be a wise regulation of the life of both the young men and the young women.

This is What is Being Done at Colorado College.

"This is what is being done at Colorado college, and it is the reason why ...all young women who are not in their own homes are required to live at the college residences. This policy is warmly commended by parents of the students and young women themselves present the protection which they receive in the college homes. Dr. Slocum believes that the young men gain many positive advantages from college where the conditions are right, under the co-educational system. There ought to be an intellectual and moral stimulus for both the men and women. The ...presence of the opposite sex is in ...some ways an aid to one, but where the conditions and life are what they ought to be, he thinks that the results on the whole are good, and he does not believe that the presence of young women drives away the men of character from co-educational colleges.

NEWS NOTES OF REAL INTEREST FROM FOREIGN CAPITALS

YOUNG KING'S FUTURE PLANNED

HEIR TO ITALY'S THRONE WILL BE TRAINED IN SPARTAN SEVERITY AS WAS HIS FATHER BEFORE HIM.

ROME, Oct. 27.—While the infant heir to the crown of Italy, Prince Humbert of Piedmont, is spending most of his time asleep in his automatic cradle, wise men of Italy are planning and making special arrangements to have him trained in a manner which befits his high birth.

When the little prince has been brought from the palace at Racconigi to Rome he will be christened with all the pomp of royalty and church. After he has already been given into the charge of Miss Dickens, whose kindness and fondness with King Victor Emanuel's other children have given great confidence to both the kids and nurses. The court physician, Dr. Querqui, has, after infinite trouble and many a hard debate with the queen, who wished to nurse her son herself, fourth unfortunate former mother for the little prince.

Exacting Physical Course.

She is 24 years old, a perfect type of the healthy Italian woman, and the wife of a forester near Racconigi. She is to receive $25 a month for her services, besides a pension for life of $5 a week.

The system of physical training to be used in the one on which the king of Italy himself was raised. Born a mistress, weakling, his parents despaired of his life, and with it for the future of their kingdom.

Italy, of all countries, demanded a ruler of quite exceptional quality as a fighter, a man whose military instinct would consolidate the power won by the warlike house from which he sprang.

Like his royal father before him the little Prince of Piedmont will be subjected to a semi-military education. He will be placed at a very early age under a military tutor to whom the fullest powers will be given. Every morning in his boyhood as will be awakened at 4 o'clock, having slept in a cold room, even in midwinter.

World Make Him a Cowboy.

He will jump from his bed into an ice cold bath, will eat breakfast at 7, and begin his studies half an hour later. His lessons will be especially selected, not so much for his own education as to eradicate all laziness from his character.

The greater his distaste for a subject the more diligence will be insisted upon. After a spell of study he will take strenuous lessons in horsemanship, whether it is to be cold, raining or snowing.

The present king often returns from these riding lessons, which he still takes [illegible] and the grooms and the guards contracts are left to care themselves, as if to an old saying that a king of Italy must not fear a cold. Concurrently with his physical hardening the Prince of Piedmont will receive an almost encyclopedic education.

Nothing will be allowed to interfere with his lessons, except with the permission of his autocratic tutor. The queen, bred in the simplicity of the little court of Montenegro, is an enthusiastic adherent of this Spartan system of education, and, in fact, thinks that the very best thing for her son would be to send him for a year or two to live with the hardy mountaineers of her native country, which would give him much the same treatment as that given to an earnest pupil of one of the best of the west, with the result of developing all the manly traits in his character.

TURQUOISE TIARA CO' IN LONDON

American Women Inaugurate Craze for the Blue Stone—Duchess of Roxburghe's Collection.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—American women in London have taken a craze for turquoises. The duchess of Roxburghe who has been a collector of these blue stones since she was a girl, and who owned almost a hundred matches, necklaces and pins, all of turquoises, has just had all these articles broken up and the largest among them made into a multiple collar extending half way down to the waist.

The jewelers in Europe have been scouring the markets to find the extra stones required to complete this wonderful necklace. As the duchess is extremely particular about the exact tone of the stones, all were submitted to her in a temporary setting of wax and many were rejected for an almost invisible flaw, so expert is her eye.

Although not possessed of so many beautiful stones the possessions of Duffcrin belong a pronounced blonde, also is devoted to the cult of the turquoise. Her jewels are much better than those of Queen Alexandra, and the largest of them are set in the form of a beautiful all-round crown, with pear-shaped points.

These stones were bought for her by her father, Mr. Davis, who spent $50,000 on some score of turquoises, all of which were of perfect color and unusually large.

Miss Chauncey, another fair-haired [illegible] devoted to emeralds, has joined in the craze for the light-blue stone. Since she came to London she has never worn a tiara until this season, when one night at Lansdowne house she made a tremendous sensation in a high tiara composed entirely of turquoises, with pear points, his ornament, which cost $20,000, is of English workmanship, and many of the gems formerly were crown jewels.

WOMAN'S MODEL HOTEL OPENED IN PARIS

PARIS, Oct. 29.—A model hotel for women and girls erected in Paris by the relatives of the late Jacques Stern, the Marquis and Marquise Chasseloup-Laubat, and M. and Mme. de Langlade, was opened this week before a fashionable assembly. M. Georges Picot, the philanthropist, and Prince Auguste d'Arenberg spoke. The exterior resembles a grand hotel. The rooms cost 10 cents a day, and a good meal, with wine, 15 cents.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF ITALIAN COUNT

EYES OF ALL ITALY TURNED TO TRIAL OF RELATIVES OF COUNT BUONMARTINI.—CASE IS VERY CLEVERLY CONCEALED.

TURIN, Oct. 29.—Though hovering upon the brink of a general election, with issues of overwhelming importance to be decided, public interest in the fate of the ministry pales into insignificance compared with the absorption of the whole country in the murder mystery growing out of the mysterious killing two years ago of Count Buonmartini. Every day the court is crowded with Italy's most aristocratic women.

The Countess Linda Buonmartini, a daughter of Dr. Murri, Italy's most prominent physician, Secchi, her father's assistant, was her sweetheart before she married, but Dr. Murri vetoed their marriage.

Was Leader of Wild Set.

Buonmartini, a man of herculean strength and volcanic temperament, is said to have pursued his amours with a flagrant openness, being the reputed leader of a circle that met in his apartments for orgies which were marked by unmentionable excesses.

The Buonmartinis separated in 1908, the countess going to live in Venice with her children. There she was frequently visited by Secchi, who had won fame in his profession, and still loved her.

Correspondence between the prisoners number 5,000 letters, which are bound in thirty-seven leather volumes. It suggests relations between the countess and Dr. Secchi and Tullio Murri, her brother, and Rosina Sonetti, the latter the mistress of Murri, as monstrous as anything charged against her husband.

The countess gave her key to the count's apartment in Bologna to Rosina Sonetti, who, on the night of August 12, 1909, admitted Tullio and Dr. Naldi—a clever but disreputable surgeon.

Poison Plan Abandoned.

The first man was to overpower Buonmartini and kill him with an injection of [illegible] poison, to be administered by Naldi; but, owing to the probable difficulty of holding the victim down, this plan was abandoned in favor of the knife.

When Count Buonmartini entered his apartment Tullio Murri himself upon him, Naldi with surgical skill giving the fatal knife thrust in the throat.

MANY AUTOS IS AMERICAN AIM

PARIS, Oct. 29.—M. Leon Auscher and M. Georges Hellman are just back from American circuit impressions. M. Auscher is well pleased. The French have been liberally represented in St. Louis. He says the Americans seem to aim at producing large numbers of automobiles at low prices rather than a few at high prices, and have not yet begun making real velvures de luxe. M. Hollman says each American passer appears to work after his own ideas, so that the situation over there is about the same as in France five years ago. Americans do not, he says, put sufficiently hard steel in their gearings. Referring to American roads, he says they are very bad.

VATICAN FACES FINANCIAL NEEDS

POPE PIUS X. ISSUES REQUEST THAT AMERICAN CHURCHES GIVE AS MUCH A POSSIBLE TO COLLECTIONS.

ROME, Oct. 28.—The Vatican has sent instructions to all the bishops in the United States to urge the faithful of their dioceses to be more generous toward the annual collections taken up on the occasion of St. Pius's name day.

[illegible] of the first year of [illegible] and the great difficulties [illegible] French churches caused the [illegible] assigning [illegible] Apostolic [illegible] this source collected from the United States will greatly exceed the average sent to Rome in previous years.

Expenses Exceed Income.

The economies introduced into the Vatican administration by the present Pope are still practiced, but the interest from invested capital contributes but a small part of the [illegible] expenses of the cardinals and nuncios.

The general fund which Pius X. has established amounts to nearly $10,000,000 invested in gilt-edged securities bearing an average interest of 3½ per cent. During the first year of the pontificate Pius has found that the expenses have largely exceeded $1,000,000, and he is under no wishing to encroach upon the capital invested.

Then there is the question of providing for contingencies like the recent case of the bishops of Laval and Dijon, to whom the pope has assigned an annual pension of $1,600, as it was impossible, because of opposition, to keep them in Rome as members of some chapter of canons.

FATE OF BROKEN ORGANS.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Mr. Chamberlain rarely uses notes when speech-making, but all the same his speeches are not only carefully prepared. But sometimes, a day or two ago, in the organ house at Highbury, Birmingham, a very valuable plant was discovered broken. Mr. Chamberlain was so annoyed that he told the gardener that visitors should no longer be permitted to see the organs.

The gardener declared that the damage was not done by visitors.

"Then by whom?" asked Mr. Chamberlain, in a way determined to discover the culprit.

"Do it yourself, sir, for I saw you," said the gardener. "You was walking up and down talking to yourself, and I heard Lord Rosebery's name, and then, sir, you struck out with your right fore sudden like, and down went the organ."

Mr. Chamberlain smiled, and sightseers are not forbidden the organ house.

GERMAN ARMY CRITIC ON TRIAL

COUNT VON BAUDISSIN, AUTHOR AND RETIRED OFFICER, IS ACCUSED OF LIBEL BY FELLOW OFFICERS.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Count Wolff von Baudissin, a kinsman of Rear Admiral von Baudissin, commander of the imperial yacht Hohenzollern during the visit of Prince Henry of Prussia to the United States, is on trial in the criminal court here for libelling the officers' corps of the Postsdam Guard Regiment, belonging to the household troops by [illegible] them to a novel entitled "Unter Der Linden." The prosecution is [illegible] by the state on the ground of the [illegible] matter.

The attack of a young friend, a lieutenant in the army, caused him to feel keenly the wrong system prevailing [illegible].

KAISER SUGGESTS WEDDING DAY FOR HIS SON

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—The date of the marriage of the Crown Prince has not yet seemingly been definitely settled, but the Kaiser would like to see him to be married on the 27th of February, his own wedding day, or on the 22d of March, the anniversary of the birth of Kaiser Wilhelm I.

The Empress has arranged that the Crown Prince shall after his marriage occupy the Stadtschloss at Potsdam. The Emperor and Empress themselves lived there after their marriage. The rooms are to be decorated in the most up-to-date artistic style, according to the personal wishes of the young couple. Frederick the Great lived in the same house, but these will, according to the Emperor's orders, be left undisturbed.

CANNES, Oct. 28.—This pretty winter resort, which has always been a favorite with royalty, is once again en fete on the occasion of a visit of the young Duchess Cecilie of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, the fiancee of the Crown Prince of Germany.

BISMARCK'S SUMMER WIFE NOW 65 YEARS OLD

VIENNA, Oct. 28.—Princess Hohenlohe-Carolath, the beautiful woman with whom the late Prince Herbert Bismarck eloped in the early '80s and whom he abandoned by order of his father, the then Chancellor, is living in this city. She occupies a small palace for the most part veiled.

The Princess is now 65 years old and rheumatism has almost made her a cripple, but at her weekly receptions to the nobility, when she sits propped up in a big arm chair, richly gowned and wearing the great family jewels of the Hatzfelds (she is a born Hatzfeldt) she still looks like a very well preserved woman, and many of her beauty of figure.

For many years Princess Carolath mourned for her faithless lover; indeed her love for him only gradually faded from her mind. The late Prince Herbert was 16 years younger than the princess.

GIVES UP THRONE FOR LOVE

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The Prince of Annam, formerly emperor, and Hang Nghi, king of Siam, who was captured by the French 18 years ago and detained a prisoner in Algiers, is to marry a French girl, Alice Lalie, daughter of Judge Lalie of Algiers, whom he met recently at dinner at her father's house. He came to Paris some time ago for permission of the French government to the marriage, which the consent of the minister was obtained. He will become a Frenchman, and gives up all the prerogatives to the throne of Annam. He is quite an artist and devotes much time to painting.

PARISIANS SAVED DONKEY DINNER

PARIS, Oct. 29.—A new restaurant has been started in the Montmartre quarter, where the only dishes served consist of horse, donkey and mule flesh. Hitherto eating houses where horse flesh was to be obtained were frequent enough, but mule and donkey have never before been placed on the bill of fare. Yesterday's menu at this lower restaurant was:

Horse bouillon.
Mules' brains in brown butter.
Donkey cutlets and French beans.
Roast sirloin of horse.
Fried potatoes.
Mules' tearrow on toast.

ENGLISH WAR CLAIMS BY CABLE

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Alderman [illegible] Redhead, mayor of Peterborough, claims that it is time that America would be owner of the city of Chicago, as his parents, the early pioneers, went out to an empty, wild country, west out to an empty, wild country, owned the tract of land in Illinois upon which the city afterward was built. When they arrived they found the Indians there. They were the only residents and claimed the property, but as they left no will, and a tedious process of law faced them, they went to New Orleans, and the matter died there. Now he can claim it, including their rights, the wife returned home to Peterborough and left the two little children.

CIRCUS FOR CHAMPS DE MARS.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The [illegible] circus at the Champs de Mars will be the Parisians "[illegible] de Boulogne." The concession was granted only this week after a long debate in the municipal council, it being feared that the concession would delay the work of beautifying the famous tract of land.

LORD TAVISTOCK ROOSTS IN TREE

DUKE OF BEDFORD'S SON RATHER THAN GO TO SCHOOL RUNS AWAY AND LIVES UP A TREE.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Duke of Bedford, one of England's greatest landowners, whose London estate includes Covent Garden, and one of the most [illegible] in the kingdom, has made an experiment and failed.

For several generations heirs of the members of the Bedford family have been educated at the big schools like Eton and Harrow. The family has always believed in private tutors at home, but the present Duke decided some time ago to see what Eton would do for his [illegible] grandson, the Marquis of Tavistock.

Little Lord Tavistock, unfortunately, showed a hereditary distaste for school at the very outset, and when the time came for him to go to Eton he was a failure, after a very few days. Even by the family butler failed to get him out of his favorite tree in the Bedford park with a rug, some sandwiches and a good book. He evidently intended to camp out for some time.

This occurred some months ago, but the story only leaked out quite recently, and to the [illegible] of Bedford [illegible] dream ever at [illegible] yesterday the duke decided to take his boy away.

The Eton boys are no angels, of course. They are the same as other boys, and they prescribe it as no boy's life is complete unless he has had a number of fights. It is said probable, therefore, that the young [illegible] will be [illegible] in the [illegible] tradition of Bedford [illegible] and [illegible] maintained in the future.

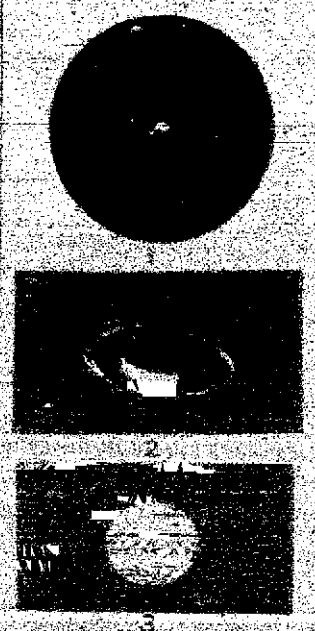
The Heavens in November

By
Prof. Eric Doolittle
Astronomer, University of Pennsylvania

DURING the coming month the face of the sky will advance far toward presenting the brilliant appearance which it shows only in mid-winter. The summer constellations, Virgin, Scorpion and Aquarius have now sunk in the west to be seen no more until next year, while to take their place the far more resplendent constellations, Taurus, Orion and Gemini have appeared in the east. The little group of the Pleiades, which last month was low down in the east has now risen more than half way to the zenith, while Orion, the most beautiful constellation of the entire heavens, is rising just below. In two months more Orion will be due south in the evening, with the two Dogs, the Twins and the Crab not far to the east of it, and Taurus to the west. This will be the most brilliant sky of the year, the mid-winter sky.

The Planet Saturn.

At the observer will face south, he will have little difficulty in finding not far from the zenith the constellation Capricornus, but it is now rather low down in the southwest. The star A is a wide double one, and a fine object in every way. The two stars of this pair were not already spectacularly beautiful, they are pretty things. The next star of the constellation of Capricornus to the west, which is also a beautiful double star, marked with an arrow near the bottom of the picture, is a rather close pair of stars, which, if examined with a telescope, are found to be an interesting combination of very light and especially colored double stars.



SATURN AND ITS RINGS.

And the most interesting object in Capricornus is the planet Saturn, which appears as a bright star in the position marked S. The accompanying figure will examine this object with a small telescope, for about it will follow the summer constellations and be lost to view until next year.

But first sight of this great world will be very striking. He will see a round ball surrounded by two rings as shown in Fig. 1, near which the largest moon of Saturn shines out as a faint star-like object. If he has access to a very large telescope, he will [illegible] months ago the ball was covered with numerous white areas, at present there is a dark band across it on the lower side and numerous other faint bands and markings, but these change their position and shape from day to day and [illegible] hour.

To us dwellers upon this world it is an [illegible] world, entirely uninhabited by animal [illegible] it is mostly covered with [illegible] water, just as this earth has been. Whether ultimately it will become the abode of life, we do not know; we may conjecture, but some time in the remote future it will certainly be so, and for ages its temperature and conditions will remain just within those of our earth.

The Ring System.

The rings of Saturn are made up of an [illegible] number of [illegible] particles, each one of which revolves around and around the planet just as the moon revolves around the earth. Each separate particle is far too small to be seen with the telescope, but there are so many of them that when they are reviewed from the earth they appear as a continuous ring. At present we see the rings changed, as shown in figure 2, but sometimes the earth is in such a position that they are presented as in figure 3. This happens every fifteen years. It is then seen that the thickness of the rings is very small, indeed, scarcely more than 100 miles. They are, in fact, so thin, that Dr. Barnard, of Chicago, has seen one of the moons of Saturn, when it was behind the rings and shining directly through them. The result, of course, have been impossible had the rings been a solid mass.

The Satellites.

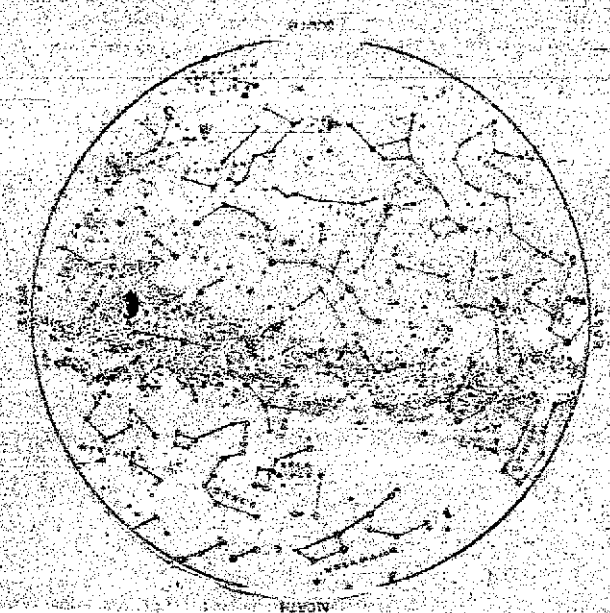
Titan, the largest moon of Saturn, can be seen even in a small telescope. It is about 4,000 miles in diameter, and [illegible] completely around the planet in sixteen days. Beside this moon, there are seven others, the inner one of which goes around the planet in less than one day, while the outer requires 79 days to make the circuit.

In 1899, the [illegible] announcement was made from the Harvard observatory that a new satellite of Saturn had been discovered on a [illegible] photograph of the planet. As later investigations showed no trace of this object [illegible] and as a most careful search failed to reveal it, it was supposed that [illegible] had been many times photographed again and even observed visually with the great Yerkes telescope at Chicago.

The new body is, of course, exceedingly small, and more observations must be made of it before its motion can be computed very exactly. It is already known, however, that this ninth moon occupies about a year and a half in passing around the planet and that it is more than eight millions of miles away from it.

The Planet Jupiter.

This planet is by far the prettiest object in the sky during the present [illegible] It will be noticed by [illegible]



MAP OF THE NOVEMBER HEAVENS.

[illegible] Book of May in the sky.

little star clusters in the constellation Pisces to the position marked J on the map. With a small telescope, its appearance will be much as shown in figure 4. The large ball of the planet is seen, crossed by several very beautiful, rose colored bands, while nearer, four bright star-like objects will be detected, these are the four moons of Jupiter.

The moons revolve rapidly about the planet, so that their relative positions are constantly changing. Sometimes one or more of them pass behind the ball, are cut out from view, while sometimes, on very rare occasions, none of them can be seen. Jupiter then presents the appearance, very peculiar to an astronomer, of being [illegible] When the light of a moon is thus cut off, the body does not remain invisible for more than a few hours of course its rapid motion about the planet soon brings it into view again.

Jupiter, the future is an immense world which is so hot that it is still in a gaseous or vaporized condition. It will be countless ages before it shall have cooled even sufficiently to make anything like life as we know it possible on its surface. This great fiery mass, more than 1,000 miles through, [illegible] on its axis very rapidly, making a complete rotation in nine hours and forty-five minutes. This means that a point on the equator of the planet is carried through 271,000 miles in ten hours, more than 450 miles a minute. The immense centrifugal force arising from this motion flattens the planet, so that it is not perfectly round, and also arranges the material of which it is composed in layers, or strata, parallel to the planet's equator. It is this which is the cause of the bands of Jupiter.

The Satellites.

In a large telescope the moons [illegible] the little round discs which are passing across the planet, so quickly that they can even be seen to move. The smallest of these is about 2,500 miles in diameter, and the largest about 7,000. Their surfaces appear more or less mottled and banded, and a white spot has several times been seen near the North pole of one of them. A fifth, very small, moon was discovered by Dr. Barnard, of Chicago, in 1892.

Eclipses of Satellites.

Both Jupiter and Saturn are visible to us simply because they reflect the sunlight which falls on them; they do not apparently emit any light of their own. The moons also only look bright to us because they are illuminated by the light of the sun. Stretching out behind each of the planets, directly away from the sun, there is therefore a large, conical shadow, into which the moons sometimes pass. Whenever this occurs the moon remains invisible to us until it emerges from the shadow into the sunlight again. It is exactly in the same way that an eclipse of our own moon is brought about whenever the satellite passes into the shadow of the earth.

One of Jupiter's moons will pass into the shadow and suddenly become [illegible] visible on the evening of November 8 at three minutes past seven; it will emerge again at twelve minutes before nine. On November 10 a moon will emerge from the shadow at ten minutes before seven, having entered it before sunset, several hours earlier. On the same evening, at 25 minutes past eight, a moon will pass behind the planet and will come out again into view at ten minutes past ten. Another eclipse will occur later this same night at five minutes past eleven, the moon remaining invisible for one hour and forty minutes. Any of these eclipses will repay observation. To see these satellites, of course, a small telescope or a very good field glass is required.

JUPITER AND ITS SATELLITES.

The November Meteors.

The November shooting stars should be looked for in the northern heavens midnight and sunrise on November 12, 14 and 15. This is the most important shower of the year. It is probable that altogether several hundred of the stars will be seen to fall during these three nights. In 1833, the sky was filled with these "falling stars" [illegible] thickly that they [illegible] a heavy storm. Unfortunately nothing like this is again looked for. It is altogether probable that such extraordinary displays of the November meteors have ceased never to recur again.

Dramatic News

WITH the appearance of Frederick Warde and Kathryn Kidder at Shakespeare the Opera house last Tuesday evening, Colorado Springs theater-goers had the first opportunity of the season to see a production of tragedy. It is not often that we have a play of this class nowadays, and perhaps it is for this very reason that they are the more appreciated. Both Mr. Warde and Miss Kidder have quite a host of friends among the theater-goers here and their performance of "Salvinbo" has received the kindest of criticisms on all sides. The rough barbarity of the play is not pleasing but both of the stars put into their parts the best of their talent.

The next attraction here will be of a very different character for Tuesday evening we are to have Eva Tanguay in "The Sambo Girl" which has already made a reputation for itself as a clever musical comedy. Miss Tanguay, it will be remembered, was the first to make a hit in the part of the crazy girl in "The Chaperones" in which part Miss [illegible] made such a success.
